OUR MISSION

College Visions empowers low-income and first-generation college students to achieve the promise of higher education while leading the way for innovative college planning and advising.

Committed to

ACHIEVING TOGETHER

“ BEYOND THE FINANCIAL BENEFITS, A COLLEGE EDUCATION OPENS DOORS to personal growth, professional networks, and the ability to positively impact our communities.”

At College Visions, we believe in the transformative power of education. A college degree remains one of the most effective tools for economic mobility, with workers holding a degree earning significantly more over their lifetimes than those with only a high school diploma. Beyond the financial benefits, a college education opens doors to personal growth, professional networks, and the ability to positively impact our communities.

In Rhode Island, the stakes are higher than ever. By 2030, seven in ten jobs in our state will require post-secondary education. For first-generation students, this reality represents both a challenge and an incredible opportunity. At CV, we are committed to equipping students with the resources, support, and guidance they need to realize their potential, graduate from college, and thrive in an increasingly competitive workforce.

This year’s annual report highlights the strides we made in 2024 to help more students navigate the path to college and beyond. Our accomplishments include serving 503 students from twenty-four high schools in seven Rhode Island communities, launching a new college and career exploration summer program in Woonsocket, and continuing a nearly 100% college enrollment rate for CV Scholars, all while maintaining a healthy financial position in a challenging funding environment.

These achievements are made possible through the generosity of our supporters, whose belief in the power of education drives our mission forward. Your investments in CV have created transformative opportunities for young leaders, providing them with the tools, guidance, and encouragement needed to access higher education and thrive. Together, we are building a brighter future for first-generation students and a more equitable Rhode Island.

COLLEGE VISIONS SHOWS THAT EMPOWERING TODAY LEADS TO BETTER, BRIGHTER TOMORROW

For our low-income and first-generation students, attending college is often seen as a dream, an almost unattainable goal further complicated by lack of familiarity on how to navigate the complex process.

It's a difficult spot to be in, especially when the numbers tell us a college degree can be the difference between a life of financial stability or living paycheck to paycheck.

Achieving the promise of higher education resonates not only through a graduate's lifetime, but also through that of their family and their future generations.

It is why the work of an organization like College Visions deserves to be elevated and celebrated for the way in which it transforms lives, families and, ultimately, our state. What they do, through an impressive and diverse network, is challenge the status quo with a model that levels the playing field by providing equitable access to higher education for historically underserved communities.

Numbers don't lie, and College Visions' reveal its holistic approach to supporting first-generation students, which has them graduating college at a rate twice that of their peers. And that's something we should all admire.

SUPPORTING THE STUDENT JOURNEY

From high school through launching their careers, College Visions is leading the way in supporting low-income and first-generation students to apply to college, enroll, earn degrees, transition to careers, and become leaders in their communities.

CV CORE PROGRAM COMPONENTS

The College Access Program provides first-generation students with comprehensive guidance through the complex college application process.

By offering personalized, relationship-driven advising, CAP meets students where they are, recognizing both their unique challenges and strengths. Advisors work closely with students and their families, providing individualized mentorship that builds confidence, demystifies the college application landscape, and ensures students have the tools, resources, and support to pursue higher education.

The College Success Program embodies College Visions' holistic commitment to supporting students not just into college, but through college, recognizing that enrollment is only the first step in achieving a degree.

CSP provides ongoing, personalized support that addresses the academic, social, emotional, and financial challenges first-generation college students often encounter while navigating college. Through personalized guidance, advisors serve as crucial navigators who help students overcome obstacles, celebrate achievements, and remain focused on their ultimate goal of graduation.

The College-to-Career Program recognizes that a college degree is a pathway to economic mobility. As we develop this program, we look to bridge the critical transition from academic achievement to professional success.

This innovative program acknowledges that first-generation students often lack the professional networks and career guidance that many of their peers have access to. By offering targeted career programming, the initiative empowers students to explore career paths, build professional skills, and create meaningful networks that can launch their careers.

CV SUPPORTING PROGRAMS

Black and Latino Male Fellowship

This innovative fellowship program launched in a concerted effort to address the disparities in college enrollment among young Black and Latino males. This program aims to increase college enrollment rates and foster supportive cohorts of young Black and Latino men who uplift and guide each other towards academic success. The culturally responsive, strengths-based curriculum includes monthly learning circles and individual advising sessions focused on academic skill-building, community-building, wellness, and college and career exploration.

CV Summer Prep

Our intensive five-week college and career exploration program for 9th-12th graders has been serving Providence Public School students since 2019 and expanded to include Woonsocket in 2024. Operating in partnership with local school districts, the program supports students through academic enrichment, college campus visits, career exploration, and social-emotional learning. CV Summer Prep provides a transformative summer experience that empowers students to envision and prepare for their post-high school opportunities.

EXPANDING STUDENT HORIZONS

The Fellowship Travels to Washington, D.C.

In April of 2024 during their school vacation, the inaugural cohort of the Black and Latino Male Fellowship embarked on a transformative journey to Baltimore and Washington, D.C. that exemplified the program's commitment to expanding horizons and empowering young scholars.

The students attended the National Partnership for Educational Access (NPEA) conference in Baltimore, where they presented on their experience in the Fellowship and shared their ideas for increasing the numbers of Black and Latino males in college access programs. In Washington, they engaged with high-level policymakers, including Senator Jack Reed, Senator Sheldon Whitehouse, and U.S. Secretary of Education Miguel Cardona. These extraordinary opportunities allowed the young men to share their personal stories and experiences, providing a powerful platform to highlight the potential and aspirations of Black and Latino male students.

Jayden

Jayden is a senior at Trinity Academy for the Performing Arts in Providence and a proud member of CV's inaugural Black and Latino Male Fellowship cohort.

Through his participation in the Fellowship, Jayden has received comprehensive, personalized guidance throughout his college application journey. His dedication and hard work recently culminated in an early acceptance to New York University, where he was selected as one of just 60 MLK Scholars in his incoming class. This prestigious honor, which emphasizes leadership and social justice, aligns perfectly with Jayden's aspirations in political science and law.

Beyond his academic achievements and career interests, Jayden maintains a diverse portfolio of activities including photography, videography, and graphic design, as well as serving as a volunteer baseball coach for Little League. As a first-generation college-bound scholar, Jayden takes immense pride in his accomplishments. His acceptance to NYU represents not just personal achievement but a milestone for his entire family, especially his younger siblings who can now imagine themselves pursuing a college degree.

CV Launches Summer Prep Program in Woonsocket

In partnership with the Woonsocket Education Department and Woonsocket High School (WHS), CV launched CV Summer Prep in Woonsocket in 2024. Held at the new Woonsocket Education Center, the program engaged 24 WHS students in five-weeks of college and career exploration activities that included college visits, mock interview sessions, and professional networking. This expansion addresses crucial needs in a community with Rhode Island's lowest college enrollment rate (32%) and second-highest childhood poverty rate. This initiative furthers CV's mission to empower first-generation students in Rhode Island's highest-need communities.

Two Woonsocket High School students delivered the Summer Prep student graduation address, issuing a call to action to their classmates: “This was an amazing experience. I never had college in my sight until College Visions. Let’s continue to shine and make a difference!”

Process Engineer, Antaya Technologies

From reluctant college applicant to Process Engineer at Antaya Technologies in Warwick, RI, CV alum, volunteer and donor Glenn Bautista's journey exemplifies CV's transformative impact. A 2007 graduate of Classical High School and 2012 graduate of the University of Rhode Island, Glenn's story demonstrates how strong guidance and unwavering support can change the trajectory of a first-generation student's life.

As a high school senior, Glenn was initially hesitant about pursuing higher education. “I wasn't all that interested in attending college after high school. I was more concerned with getting a full-time job to help my mom pay the bills,” he recalls. However, at his sister's encouragement, he joined CV—a decision that proved pivotal to his journey ever since.

At CV, Glenn's advisors provided him with critical guidance on the college application process and they were a source of encouragement when he experienced doubts or lack of confidence. Their persistence paid off—Glenn went on to earn his B.S. in Mechanical Engineering from URI.

Today, in his work as a Process Engineer, Glenn researches technologies and automation opportunities across various industries. His role combines office project management with hands-on fieldwork.

Glenn's connection to CV extends far beyond his student years. As both a regular donor and Career Mentor to current CV Scholars, he embodies the organization's mission of creating lasting change. “When I was younger, I couldn't visualize myself graduating college and having a career—mainly because none of my role models had made it that far. But being that example for someone else and influencing them to further their education means a lot to me.”
